WHO SHOULD CONSIDER THE INTERDISCIPLINARY STUDIES PROGRAM?

So who should consider Interdisciplinary Studies? You should!

The Interdisciplinary Studies Program (IDS) offers students the opportunity to design their own major based on their academic and professional goals. Our purpose is to produce students with the ability to draw from multiple areas of study to solve complex, contemporary issues, and who are ready to compete in a global and fluctuating workforce.

Consider interdisciplinary studies if:

- You have an interest in several disciplines or academic areas. With the Interdisciplinary Studies program, you can create and design your own program by integrating multiple academic areas into a single and unique degree program, custom to you.
- You have a career aspiration that we don't offer a degree in.

The Interdisciplinary Studies degree option enables you to construct a unique degree program that will prepare you for a career in a specific field, or multiple career paths, through a unique blend of academic disciplines and skill areas.

- You want to change academic programs. If you've already invested time and hard work in another major but are looking for a change, the Interdisciplinary Studies program could allow you the opportunity to utilize the credits you've already earned and continue to pursue a different academic interest.
- You are a transfer student. As a transfer student, the Interdisciplinary Studies program often can provide a more direct pathway to graduating. Similar to those students changing academic programs, for you as a transfer student the IDS program may allow you to better utilize the credits you're already earned.
