U.S. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

Financial decision making is at the heart of any corporate organization, bank or financial services company. You will learn about the key aspects of financial decision making through a wide variety of courses focused on topics such as; Corporate Finance, Investments, Derivatives, International Finance, Banking, Investor Behavior, Treasury Management and Financial Risk Management, to name a few. You also have the opportunity to get hands-on money management experience through our student-managed investment fund.

PROGRAM FEATURES

Business Administration – Concentration, Finance

Our carefully designed finance curriculum includes specialization tracks in:

- Treasury Management & Banking • Investments & Portfolio Management
- Financial Risk Management • Real Estate Finance

The required finance courses, combined with the elective courses under each of the four specialization tracks and our affiliations with professional certificate granting agencies, collectively prepares our students for professional certification exams as well. The solid foundation that our coursework provides, combined with our affiliations with professional certificate granting agencies, prepare our students for professional certification exams such as, CTP (Certified Treasury Professional), SIE (Securities Industry Essentials) and motivate some of our students to pursue graduate education as well. Plan to get our curriculum certified by a few more prestigious professional certificate granting agencies in the works. We prepare our students for professional certification exams and provide one-on-one guidance!

Minor in Real Estate

The real estate minor, consisting of six courses or 18 credits, is designed to appeal to a broad range of students within and outside the School of Business with interest in real estate practice.
